

Viewing Your Site

You can view your site at any time by doing one of two things.

Your blog has a URL or web address – get used to this, as you will use it over and over again. You can give this out to people so that they can find what you have to say.

The second way is the way that you as the author will most often use. When you are logged in to your dashboard, simply click the 'View site' link at the top left of the screen. You will be shown your blog, but still being logged in to make any changes.

Click the 'back' button on your browser to view any changes.
